PLANS COMPLETED FOR FORD DAY

WOMAN'S CLUB TO ESTABLISH FREE LIBRARY

Rummage Sale and Biscuit Sale to Help Raise Funds

STATE TO LOAN BOOKS

The Woman's club held its regular meeting Monday afternoon, April 17. Notwithstanding the unpleasant weather the attendance was exceptionally large.

Reports of committees and delegates occupied the time until the arrival of the speaker, Mrs. Mary B. Page.

At the last club meeting a committee was appointed to canvas the situation and if possible to devise a plan by which to give the community, at least, the nucleus of a Public Library.

This committee reported having secured for a location one side of the store building occupied by W. J. Chinn as a newsstand.

Books for the library are to be supplied by the public. Each member of the club and every friend of the cause is asked to donate one book.

The books so donated are to be left at the Racket Store at your very earliest convenience. The name of the donor is to be written upon the outside wrapping of the book.

From the Extension Division of the State Library in Springfield, a loan of fifty books, for three months may be obtained for the cost of transportation. These books may be exchanged at the expiration of the time, thus insuring new reading matter from time to time at very little cost.

To defray the necessary expenses of "putting over" the project the committee have planned to hold upon the opening day of the library a Rummage sale plus a Biscuit sale.

For the Rummage sale each club member is asked to bring or send to the committee, some article of furniture or household use whose value she is willing to donate to the establishment of a library in the community. Any article sent in will be sold upon commission in case the owner feels unable to donate the full amount.

For the Biscuit sale we are each to send two dozen raised biscuits or rolls to help along the good cause.

The library will be taken care of for the present by members of the committee and will be open to the public Wednesday evenings and Saturdays both afternoon and evening.

The time of the annual spring house cleaning is with us. In every home there are what are known as White Elephants—things good and useful in themselves yet which do not fit the home or for which there is in that home no further use.

Perhaps you have bought a new table or couch and do not know what to do with the old one. Perhaps the baby has outgrown his carriage or go-cart.

Perhaps you have articles of furniture, dishes or cooking utensils useful to those who are furnishing cottages at the lake.

Rummage around your homes and turn the things you no longer need into good books for your boy and girls. Can you make a better investment? Can you turn white elephants, biscuits or rolls to better account?

Select a good book from your own collection, or buy a new one, wrap it, and place your name on the wrapping then send it to the Racket store to be turned over to the library committee.

Please do not delay the donation. The committee plan to be ready for the opening in about two weeks, provided it meets with the hearty support it deserves. "He gives twice who gives quickly" in this case. These books must be in the hands of the committee for examination and cataloging in order to be ready by the time the consignment arrives from Springfield.

Here then is an opportunity to become one of the founders of a library—a library of good books—that shall go on enriching the lives of boys and girls long after we are at rest. What more enduring monument can be desired?

Town Topics

Scientists claim that when a person closes his eyes the sense of hearing is much clearer. I noticed several people testing the theory at last Sunday's church services.

The A. V. Smith sponge squad have made so many visits to the Grass Lake section that the result is the resorts are so dry that they will have to pin the postage stamps on to their advertising literature this spring.

Everybody Works But Father
Reed—Born to Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Reed, a daughter, Edith Marion. Thanks to nurse, E. M. Powell and Dr. Price.—Cinn. Times.

Early arrivals at "the lakes" were planning to have some home brew this summer and after making a batch, thought they would try some on a mouse before drinking any themselves. Result—after taking a sip the mouse started running around the room hollering "now where's that cat?"

Come on, you fat women! Climb into a Flivver on Ford day and win the prize that S. H. Reeves is donating to the fattest woman in a Ford. The prize, oh, yes. It is a limit of 15 bucks worth of "Fat Reducer." He also guarantees this Reducer to make graceful and slender the fattest of women. Don't crowd ladies, everyone will be taken into consideration. In fact there will be a second prize of the same article. Atta boy, S. H.

Otto Lehmann Purchases Late Fred Bussé Farm

The sale of the entire country estate at Fox Lake of the late Fred Bussé, formerly mayor and postmaster of Chicago, was consummated the latter part of last week through the offices of T. J. Stahl & Co., brokers, of Waukegan. The estate comprises 633 acres and includes the Atwell farm of 120 acres with 80 acres fronting on the east side of Fox Lake. Otto Lehmann, of the Fair store, Chicago, is the purchaser and the consideration is given at $100,000.

Some few months ago forty acres off of the lake frontage including the summer home, was sold by this firm to Victor Wilmot, of Chicago, and the sale completes the sale of the entire holdings in that vicinity. This makes the Lehmann's over 1,000 acres of land in this county.

The Fox Lake district is fast growing to be the high class and fashionable summer home territory of the Chicago wealthier class. Beautiful homes have been erected adjoining this tract by Fred Dundin, Deerings, Henry Klein, Thornes and others.

Antioch Orchestra Organized

The group of young musicians who have been holding practice around the town for the last two weeks have finally organized as the Antioch Band association. They will continue holding rehearsals every Monday and Friday evenings and those advanced instrument musicians who care to join this organization may do so by applying to Mr. Peterson. The association will be a municipal affair for the purpose of giving concerts and should prove an added accomplishment to the village.

PROMISES TO BE GREATEST DAY EVER HELD IN ANTIOCH

Fifty Prizes by Business Men to Contestants in Parade and Races Valued at More Than $500

FIRST DOLLAR DAY EVER HELD

Plans for Ford and Dollar Day, to be held Saturday, April 29, were completed Tuesday evening at a meeting at the Village hall, when more than a score of local merchants and business men assembled and "put over" what is expected to be Antioch's greatest of all days.

Twenty events are scheduled in the program and a list of excellent prizes are being offered to the winners.

Registration will be held between 10 and 12 o'clock noon at the Antioch Sales & Service Station, and the program will start promptly at one o'clock with the parade. Eighteen prizes are to be given for various events during the parade. A feature of the day will be an "Economy race". Each car will fill its carburetor with gasoline and see which can go the greatest distance. Another big feature that will cause much excitement is the "slow race". In this the one that takes the most time in going a distance of about one block without stopping his machine will be the winner.

The businessmen signified their intention of decorating their stores in a Fordson tractor, "Farm Operations as Done with a Fordson" and "How Seeds Germinate and Grow in Various Seed Beds." These are all interesting to the townspeople as well as the farmer. Mr. Geo. Duncomb of the Oliver Chilled Plow Co., will lecture on "Soil and Seed Preparation."

Mr. C. E. Fawcett, Power Farming Expert of the Ford Motor Co., will give an interesting talk on "The Farmer as a Manufacturer." There will be motion pictures on "Corn Cultivating with a Fordson Tractor", "Farm Operations as Done with a Fordson" and "How Seeds Germinate and Grow in Various Seed Beds."

Practically all the stores in town will have special bargains to offer to the people in town that day. At most stores a dollar will be able to do big things. Read the ads in the big special edition on the Antioch News next week.

The music will be furnished by newly organized Antioch orchestra.

Baseball Squad Looks Good in Initial Practice

The Antioch base ball held their initial practice Sunday on the ball grounds, but on account of the wind and soggy condition of the grounds none of the boys extended themselves very much.

Antioch will probably be represented by one of the best teams in its history this year. A group of business men of the town have formed themselves into the Antioch Athletic association and with the membership fee contributed there should be no financial difficulties encountered this year with proper support from the attendance at the games.

Sam Tarbell will manage the team again this year and has succeeded in getting a good class of ball players to try for the team. Mr. Tarbell, in a short talk to the players after the practice Sunday, gave out the prospects of the team for the year and announced the selection of Harry Moat to captain the team for the coming year.

Mr. Moat is a player that needs no recommendation, and the manager should be commended for his selection of this popular 2nd baseman. "Berry" Fields, who played third last year looks like the logical man for that position again this year.

Young Everett Hook was prancing around the shortstop territory in good shape Sunday and did not seem to have any difficulty in digging them out of the mud and shooting them across the diamond to first.

Lenard Hook, of Grayslake, with Scott, were alternately covering first. Hook is a seasoned player and as a first baseman has a reputation to be envied. Scott, while not as rangy as Hook was displaying some fine base ball in that territory.

Due to the strong wind Sunday the men trying for the outfield did not have proper conditions for showing up their ability. The three men reporting for the outfield were: George and Louis Filla, of Fox Lake, and George Reis, of Kenosha.

The pitching staff has not as yet

"He's some fox," said Lund. "Miss Peggy, you better superintend the theatricals. It's got to be done right. Rainey, not to interrupt you, what do you know about enteric fever?"

"Nothing."
"Well, it's the same as typhoid. There'll be a surgeon aboard that gunboat. You got to bluff him. Say little 'an' look wise as an owl. Don't let him mix in with yore patient."

"My patient?"
"Tamada! He's got enteric fever. If there's time he'll give you all the dope."
"But I don't see how that—"

"You will see when you see Tamada." Lund grinned. "How about them logs? Can you fix 'em?"

"I think so."
"Then hop to it. I'm goin' to wise up the men and arrange a reception committee. Don't forget yore name's Carlisen, an' mine's Slims."

Rainey wrote rapidly in his log, erasing, eliminating pages without trace, imitating the skipper's phrasing. Fortunately Slims had made scant entries at first and, later on, as the entries held him, none at all. Carlisen had kept no record that he could find. The girl had gone forward to aid with Tamada's plan which Lund had evidently accepted.

Before he had quite finished he heard the tramp of men on deck and the blast of a steam whistle. He ended his task and went up to see the gunboat, gray and menacing, its brasses glistening, men on her decks at their posts, oblivious of the schooner, and officers on her bridge watching the progress of a launch toward the floe.

It made landing smartly, and a lieutenant, diminutive but highly effective in appearance, led six men toward the Karluk. He wore a sword and revolver; the men carried carbines. Their disciplined rank and smartness, the waiting launch, the gunboat in the offing, were ominous with the suggestion of power, the will to administer it. The officer in command carried his chin at an arrogant tilt. Lund had rigged a gangway and stood at the head of it, saluting the lieutenant as the latter snappily answered the greeting.

Rainey found the girl and put a hurried question.
"What about Tamada? Where is he?"
"What's the plan?"
She turned to him with eyes that danced with excitement.

"He's in the galley, Doctor Carlisen. But he isn't Tamada any more. He's Jim Cuffee, nigger cook, sick with enteric fever, not to be disturbed."

Rainey stared. It was a clever device, if Tamada could carry it out, and he bear his own part in the masquerade. The willingness of Tamada to risk the disguise was assurance of his fidelity.

"Lund should have told me," he said. "I've got to change his name on the papers. It won't take a minute though; he doesn't appear in the log." The Japanese officer wasted no time on deck. For precaution, Rainey made his alteration in the skipper's cabin, leaving the log there on the built-in desk.

"This is Lieutenant Ito, Doctor Carlisen," said Lund. "You want to see our papers, Lieutenant?"
"My orders are to examine the schooner," said Ito, in English even more perfect than Tamada's. His face was officially severe, though his slant eyes shifted constantly toward the girl. Evidently she was an unexpected feature of the visit.

"I'll get the papers first," said Lund. "Doctor, you an' Peggy entertain the lieutenant." Rainey set out some whiskey, which the Japanese refused, some cigars that he passed over with a motion of his hand. He sat down stiffly and ran through the papers.

"We're pelagic, you know," said Lund. "We ain't trespassin' on purpose. Didn't even know you owned the island."

"It is on our charts," said Ito crisply, as if that settled the right of dominion. "How did you come here at all?"

"We was brought," said Lund. "Got froze in north o' Wrangell. Gale set us west as we come out of the strait. We're bound for Corwin. Nothin' contraband. All reg'lar. Six hunters, two damaged in the gale, though the doc's fixed 'em up. Twelve seamen, one boy, an' a nigger cook who's poisoned himself with his own cookin'." Doc's bringin' him round, too, though he don't deserve it. Want to make yore inspection? We're in no hurry to git away until the ice melts. Take yore time."

The little, dapper officer with his keen, high-cheeked face, and his shoe-brush hair, got up and bowed, with a side glance at Peggy Slims.

"Delirious," said Lund. "Serves him right. He's a rotten cook."

"Have you all the medicines you need?" asked Ito. "I can send our surgeon."

"Where I go she goes," said Lund. And looked in turn at her with relish in his double suggestion. He, too, was playing the game, gambling, believing in his luck, reckless, now he had set the board.

They passed through the corridor. Lund opened up the strong room, and then the galley. It was orderly, and there was a moaning figure in Tamada's bunk, a tossing figure with a head bound in a red bandanna above the black face and neck that showed above the blankets. The eyes were closed. The black hands, showing lighter palms, plucked at the coverings.

"Delirious," said Lund. "Serves him right. He's a rotten cook."

"Have you all the medicines you need?" asked Ito. "I can send our surgeon."

"I can manage," returned Rainey, allas Carlisen. "It's enteric. I've reduced the fever."

"They passed on through the hunters' quarters. The girl fell behind with Rainey."

"A good makeup and a good actor," she whispered. "I helped him to be sure he covered everything that would show. It was my idea about the bandanna. Just what a sick negro might wear, and it hid his straight hair."

The lieutenant appeared fairly satisfied, but requested that Lund go on board his ship. He stayed there until sundown, returning in hilarious mood.

"We've slipped it over on 'em this time," he said. "I left 'em asswim with sake, an' bubbled over with polite regrets. But they'll be back in three weeks, they said, if the ice be out of 'An', if the luck holds, we'll be out of it. I don't want them searchin' the ship ag'in." He slapped Tamada on the back as he came to serve supper after Sandy had laid the table.

"A reg'lar voodooist skit," he exclaimed. "You're some actor, Tamada! But why didn't you say the head was down on your charts? They've even got a name for it. Hiyama."

"It means hot mountain," said Tamada. "The government names many islands."

"You can bet yore life they do," said Lund. "They're smart, but they overlooked that beach an' they've given us three weeks to cash in."

Lund himself had limbed enough of the sake to make him loose of tongue, added to his elation at the success he had achieved. The gun-boat was gone on its patrol, and he had a free hand. He half-filled a glass with whiskey. "Here's to luck," he cried. And spilled a part of the liquor on the floor before he set the glass to his lips.

"Here's to you, Doc," he added. "An' to Peggy!" He rolled eyes that were a trifle bloodshot at the girl.

"Our relations have gone quietly, usual, Mr. Lund," she said tranquilly. Lund glared at her half-truculently.

"I'm agreeable," he said. "As a daughter, I disown you from now on, Miss Peggy. Here's to yore, jest the same!"

CHAPTER XII.

My Mate.

From the day following the arrival and departure of the Japanese gunboat, they attacked the little U-shaped beach that lay between two buttresses of the volcano and sloped sharply down to the sea. Twenty-one men, a lad and a woman, they went at the despoiling of it with a sort of obsession, led, rather than driven, by Lund, who worked among the rest of them like a Hercules.

The men's fancy estimate of a million dollars began speedily to seem small as the work progressed, systematically stripping the rocky floor of all its shingle, foot by foot, and cubic yard by cubic yard, cradling it in crude rockers, fluming it, vaporizing the amalgam of gold and mercury, and adding pound after pound of virgin gold to the sacks in the schooner's strong room.

They worked at first in alternating shifts of four hours, by day and night, under the sun, the moon, the stars and the flaming aurora. The crust was drifting here and there where it had frozen into conglomerate, and exploded by dynamite, carefully placed so as not to dislodge the masses of ice that overhung the schooner. Fires to thaw out the ground were unavailable for sheer lack of fuel; there was no driftwood between these forestless shores. What fuel could be spared was conserved for use under the boilers that melted ice to provide water for the cradles and flumes, and help to cook the meals that Tamada prepared out-of-doors for the workers.

Buckets of coffee, stews, and thick soups of peas and lentils, masses of beans with plenty of fat pork, these were what they craved after hours of tremendous endeavor. Despite the cold, they sweated profusely at their tasks stripping off over-garments as they picked and shoveled or crowded out the rich gravel.

Through all of it Lund was supreme as working superintendent. There was no job that he could not, did not, handle better than any two of them, and though Rainey could see a shrinkage, or a compression, of his bulk, as day by day he called upon it for heroic service, he never seemed to tire.

"Got to keep 'em at it," he would say in the cabin. "No time to lose, an' the odds all against us, in a way. Barring Luck. That's what we got to count on, but we don't want them thinkin' that. If the weather don't break—an' break jest right—as soon as we've cleaned up, we're stung. Though I'll blast a way out of this shore ice, if it comes to the worst. I saved out some dynamite on purpose."

With Lund handling all of the men as a unit, it was not long before the shovels began to scrape on the bare rock that underlay the gravel at tide edge, and work swiftly back to the end of the U. The outcrops of kitchen had been established on top of the promontory between the schooner and the beach, a primitive arrangement of big pots slung from tripods over fires kindled on a flat area that was partly sheltered from the sea and the prevailing winds by outcrops of weathered lava.

At dawn the men trooped from the schooner to be fed and warmed, and then they flung themselves at their task. The more they got out the more there was in it for them. But Lund was their overlord, their better, and they knew it. Only Deming worked with one hand the handle of the force bellows, or fed the fires, and sneered.

On the fifteenth day, with the work better than half done, with more than a ton of actual gold in colors, ranging from flour dust to nuggets, in the strong-room, the weather began to change. It misted continually, and Lund, rejoicing, prophesied the breaking up of the cold snap.

By the eighteenth day a regular Chinook was blowing, melting the sharper outlines of the icy crags and pinnacles, and providing streams of moisture that, in the nights now gradually growing longer, glazed every yard of rock with peril.

The men worked in a muck with their rubber sea-boots worn out by constant chafing, sweaters torn, the blades of their shovels reduced by the work demanded of them, the drills, shortened by steady sharpening, gone like the spare flesh of the laborers, who, at last, began to show signs of wear and quicker exhaustion with occasional mutterings of discontent.

While Lund, intent upon cleaning off the rock as a dentist cleans a crumbling tooth, coaxed and cursed, blamed and praised and bullied, and did the actual work of three of them.

Dead with fatigue, filled with food, drowsy from the liberal grog allowance at the end of the day, the men slept in a torpor every night and showed less inclination to respond, though the end of their labors was almost in sight.

"What's the use, we got enough," was the comment beginning to be heard more and more frequently. "Lund, he got more'n he can spend in a lifetime!"

Rainey could not trace these mutterings to Deming's instigation, but he suspected the hunter. There was no poker; all hands were, too tired for play.

As for Peggy Slims, she did not lose the polish of her culture, she was always feminine, even dainty at times, despite her work, that could not help but be coarse to a certain extent. She was full of vigor, she showed unexpected strength, she was a source of encouragement to the men as she waited on them. And also a source of undisguised admiration, all of which she shed as a duck sheds water.

Rainey gained an increasing respect in her browness, and a swift conversion to the equality of the sexes. There were times when he doubted his own equality. Had she met him on his own ground, in his own realm of what he considered vaguely as culture, he would have known a mastery that he now lacked. As it was, she averaged higher, and she had an attraction of sex that was compelling.

Here was a girl who would demand certain standards in the man with whom she would mate, not merely a company through life. There were times when Rainey felt irresistibly the charm of her as a woman, longed for her in the powerful sex reactions that inevitably follow hard labor. There were times when he felt that she did not consider that he measured up to her gauges, and he would strive to change the atmosphere, to dominate the situation in which Lund was the greater figure of the two men.

Lund was centered on one achievement, the gold harvest. He ordered the girl with the rest; there were even times when he reprimanded her, while Rainey burned with the resentment she apparently did not share.

A little before dawn on the eighteenth day of the work up the beach, Lund was out upon the floe examining the condition of the ice. He had declared that two days more of hard endeavor would complete their labors. What dirt remained at the end of that time they would transship. Rainey had joined the girl and Tamada at the cook fires.

The sky was bright with the aurora borealis that would pale before the sun. The men were not yet out of their bunks. They were bone and muscle tired, and Rainey doubted whether Lund, gaunt and lean himself, could get two days of top work out of them. Near the fires for the cooking, the melting of water and the forge, that were kept glowing all night, the tools were stacked to help preserve their temper.

The aurora quivered in varying incandescence as Rainey watched Lund prodding at the floe ice with a steel bar. The girl was busy with the coffee, and Tamada was compounding two pots of stew and bubbling peas pudding for the breakfast, food for heat and muscle making.

Sandy appeared on deck and came swiftly over the side of the vessel and up the worn trail to the fires. He showed excitement, Rainey fancied, sure of it as the lad got within speaking distance.

"Where is Mr. Lund?" he panted. Rainey pointed that had opened up in the floe, a possible line of exit for the Karluk, later on. The men were beginning to show on the schooner.

They, too, he noted somewhat idly, acted differently this morning. Usually they were sluggish until they had eaten, sleepy and indifferent until the coffee stimulated them, and Lund took up the stimulus and fanned it to a flame of work. This morning they walked differently, abnormally active.

"They're drunk, an' they're goin' on strike," said Sandy. "You know the big dem John in the lazaretto?"

Rainey nodded. It was a two-handled affair holding five gallons, a reserve supply of strong rum from which Lund dispensed the grog allowances and stimulations for extra work toward the end of the shift, the night-caps and occasional rewards.

To Revive a Fire.

Dry orange and lemon peel make splendid fire revivers. Dried peel is especially good for bringing a dull fire to life in a sick room, where the crackling of a few sticks may awake the patient for whom sleep is necessary. All peel should be collected and dried in an oven that is cooling off after cooking. Then the peel should be stored in a tin or old string bag until it is required.

Poe's Perfection of Form.

Poe lacked deep convictions of any kind, profound human experience, genuineness, and wealth of nature. His art is correspondingly superficial and artificial. Nevertheless, his work is sure to live because of its perfection of form. He is a masterly technician—the first of the decadents—the forerunner of the practitioners of art for art's sake.—Lewis Edwards Gates.

Methodist Episcopal Church News

SUNDAY SERVICES:

Sunday School	9:45
Morning Service	11:00
Epworth League	7:00
Evening Service	7:45

Everybody is looking forward with high anticipation to this Thursday evening, when Doctor Diffendorfer comes with his wonderful pictures, taken in all parts of the world and his thrilling address, giving the wonder story of the marvelous things being achieved in all the continents.

Everybody will come to supper at 6 p. m. in the church basement which will be served by the ladies free to all comers. Admission, address and everything is free.

Easter was a splendid day in the church, which was exceedingly beautiful with its decorations. The music, furnished by the large choir and the Harmonium quartette, was very inspiring at both services. While the sermons were specially adapted not only to the Easter tide, but also to the great forward program of conquest for Christ which the churches have on at this time.

The morning message set forth and powerfully emphasized that the only way by which wars and famine and anarchy and pestilence can be prevented and abolished is to make the rule of Christ universal, and that everyone is equally under obligation to bring complete triumph to the great cause and kingdom of Christ.

The evening service treated briefly and forcefully some of the evils from which the people are suffering and pointed out just why those evils can not be done away without the triumph of Christ. Only Christ can cure selfishness, the root of all the troubles.

In both services it was clearly and very emphatically shown that it is impossible for any one to do his or her share in helping to bring victory to Christ without active membership in some branch of the church of Christ where he or she lives, and all were urged to enlist without delay in His army, which is His church, and be unswervingly loyal to Him and be a real soldier of Christ. Especially it was shown how unworthy of fine manhood and womanhood it would be for any to remain out of the army of Christ for selfish reasons of worldly advantage or personal pleasure.

P. S. Don't forget this Thursday evening. Come at 6.

A Hard Answer.

"My husband considered a very long time before he proposed to me. He was very careful." "Ah, it's always those careful people who get taken in."

Woman's Club to Establish Library

If it be true that the physical man is what he eats, it is especially true that the mental and spiritual man is what he reads.

The opportunity is now ours. Let us make a generous response.

Mrs. Warriner in a very interesting manner, gave us an account of the meeting of March 30th in the city. The synopsis of the report of the Salvation Army submitted by them to the different organizations of women assembled was especially interesting.

These reports add much to the value and interest of the club programs. Through them we are kept in touch with the big movements now claiming the attention of America's intelligent womanhood.

The speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. Mary B. Page. Mrs. Page has for many years been at the head of a Chicago Normal school. She is a woman well educated, cultured and with years of experience in the training of girls through their most difficult years. She was a forceful and rapid fire speaker and an inspiration to all who heard her. Space forbids even a synopsis of this—another fine lecture enjoyed by the Woman's club.

One after another these educated and trained women whose lives are dedicated to the service of other come before us and more and more we come to know the common purpose—the unity of hope and endeavor that is the mainspring of all true women.

After all—"The colonel's lady and Sarah O'Grady—Are sisters under the skin."

Darken Fish Bowl.

On the outside of your goldfish bowl paint the bottom and about two inches above the bottom in dark green paint. This adds greatly to the comfort of your pets. They will not swim so wildly but seek the bottom and rest. Very pretty castles can be built of rough pebbles, and cement (choosing a cement that will not be affected by water) projections, nooks and tunnels will be appreciated by the fish. Boys and girls, too, will find making them a pleasure.

Special Music at St. Ignatius' Church Sunday

Next Sunday, the first Sunday after Easter, there will be special music at St. Ignatius church. Mr. Harold Hoag, of Immanuel church choir, La Grange, will be present and sing two numbers. Mr. Hoag is at present a student in the Western Theological Seminary of Chicago, but is a professional singer of considerable note. The music will be rendered at the Morning service. The two numbers will be "The King of Love My Shepherd Is" by Chas. Gounod and "Just for Today," by Paul Ambrose.

Immanuel choir of which Mr. Hoag is a member has visited Antioch before and is remembered very kindly by the people of Antioch. Everyone is invited to be present and to hear Mr. Hoag next Sunday.

Choir practice as usual on Saturday afternoon at 4:30. Church School on Sunday at 9:45. All scholars who have brought their mite boxes should do so next Sunday.

Morning prayer and sermon at 11:00 at which time Mr. Hoag will sing Come and bring your friends.

Baseball Team Looks for Banner Season

been settled but it is hoped that "Bob" Wilton will again get back into harness and with the appearance of Ted Ochs, a semi-professional player from the east and Olson and Bowman, of Chicago, Mallinaro, of Kenosha, that the manager will be able to select two good pitchers to carry the team through the season.

The heavy end of the battery is expected to be taken care of by "Red" Fields, Charley McCleary and Lois Filia.

Plato's Tribute to Music.

Plato wrote: Music is a moral law. It gives a soul to the whole universe, wings to the mind, flight to the imagination, a charm to sadness, a gaiety and life to everything. It is the essence of order and harmony, and leads to all that is good, just and beautiful of which it is the invisible but nevertheless the dazzling, passionate and eternal form.

Highways for Trucks

[National Crop Improvement Service.] Miles upon miles of good gravel road in Illinois have been utterly ruined by the heavy trucking service which is using them daily and the sad part of it is that the better a road originally, the more the trucks have cut it up.

The time has come and we may as well admit it, when we must build a system of good roads which will stand heavy traffic so that auto trucks may handle much of the short-haul freight of this class of business and enabling them to take care of the long hauls.

Good roads for trucking will prevent another freight congestion which has paralyzed business ever since the war. Many experts say that this freight congestion had a very important part in bringing about the high cost of living.

It is generally agreed that concrete roads will adequately take care of the traffic as we have known it for the last few years, but what about the immense increase in heavy hauling? What about the millions of new cars which are being purchased by farmers and dwellers in the small towns? We must build for the future. We must anticipate our needs which will probably crowd our roads and submit them to severe stress. We must adequately strengthen our roads to take care of this enormous traffic.

We must see that the foundation is deep and solid; then the roads must be graded and drained to carry off the water. Then we must select the very best materials available and make the slab of sufficient thickness and strength to carry the load; and perhaps most important, we must take every precaution against frosts and unusual wear and tear, re-enforcing this concrete slab with steel.

The additional cost is but trifling, but without this very important feature, our whole road-building program may be a failure.

Owl Put Up Good Fight. The ferocity of the white owl is well known. A hunter shot a mallard that fell upon land and on going to retrieve his prize, found the wounded bird had been attacked by an Arctic owl, whose wing spread was six feet. Instead of flying away upon the approach of man, the owl clapped its big beak viciously and flapped its wings in defiance. As the hunter advanced the owl dashed at him and for several minutes there occurred a terrific fight. In the end the owl had to be shot twice with the shotgun.

Florence Mumford and Jessie Runyard visited school Monday afternoon. The University does not seem to have changed Jessie's study hall conduct very much.

The members of the Physics class are taking turns being called "teacher." This happens to be a very good way to get the students to work. Willard Chinn is the winner of the prize for making the best talk.

The bookbinding class is binding magazines on tapes. Wertz is an efficient and fast worker when Miss Smith is around.

Everyone except the debating team enjoyed a two days vacation from school but some hard work outside of school.

Fritz found a good opportunity to use the Stitches and Stew club Tuesday. The club declined as Fritz changed his raiment.

Margaret Jack was absent Monday. Bunny counts her credits before her work and was in the city buying her graduation clothes.

Irene Kidd and Miss Johnson visited school Monday. Irene was so excited to see every one that no one saw her.

Miss Seward was absent Wednesday on account of illness.

Last Wednesday night the rain caught a crowd of people at Albert Herman's party. Everyone knows the effect when you have "girls-Easter clothes-rain."

The design class is studying home planning and decorating. They journeyed to Sabin's plumbing shop Tuesday and to the Electric shop Wednesday.

Miss Clevenger gave her geometry class an exam on one of her "pet propositions" Tuesday.

The Debate will be a week from this Friday the 28th. Everyone is invited to come out and here the negative debate or go to Libertyville to hear the affirmative.

Wanted-News from the Freshmen class.

The Junior Cow Testing association is now testing over four hundred dairy cattle every month for farmers of this community.

The Agriculture boys who have been spraying fruit trees say that they can handle a few more. Interested parties may inquire at the High School.

The Agriculture club wishes to thank Mr. Johnson for showing the two reels of Agricultural pictures at their last meeting.

I wish to thank my many friends and especially the older people who gave me such a generous support at the school election, as the opposition seemed to center against the woman member of the board.

Artie Grice.

Local and Social Happenings

Miss Florence Mumford, daughter of Rev. M. J. Mumford, of Evanston, visited over the week end with her parents.

The Twenty-Five Best Shrubs For Illinois

In considering which are the best shrubs for any given locality one naturally has in mind not only adaptability to conditions but also the human side of the matter, one's love of old favorites and a vague dislike for the unfamiliar. There are beautiful shrubs that thrive in the east, south and west, but will not grow here unless they are given very special care and protection, but even at best they are strangers here and should not be used.

What shrubs should one plant? In order to help decide this question we give below a list of twenty-five shrubs, that are all very hardy, requiring absolutely no winter protection and that will thrive in ordinary good garden soil:

Japanese Barberry, Scarlet-twigged Dogwood, Golden-barked Dogwood, Hawthorn, Witch Hazel Privet, Bush Honeysuckle, Mock Orange, Hybrid Mock Orange, Ninebark Spirea, The Buckthorns, The Sumacs, The Elders, Bridal Wreath Spirea, Froebel's Spirea, Snowberry, Coral Berry, The Lilacs, Prairie Rose, Golden Bell, High Bush Cranberry, Snowball, Arrow Wood, Tamarisk, Weigela.

Among these are to be found the most beautiful of our fast disappearing native shrubs and also most of our old time garden favorites, loved for their flowers or decorative fruit.

DEFEATS FREE SEED MOVE

To the American Farm Bureau Federation, the national farm bureau may be given a large share of the credit for saving tax payers $360,000 on the elimination in the senate of the appropriation for free seeds to be sent out by campaigning congressmen to their rural constituents. The American Farm Bureau Federation worked against the free seeds on the ground that they were of little or no use to farmers and were in the main merely a substitute for the old campaign cigar.

FEEDING SALT TO DAIRY CATTLE

That cows need a liberal supply of common salt is well known. There are two methods of feeding salt, one to mix it with the grain and the other to feed it separately. The objection to feeding salt by mixing it with the grain is that some cows may not get enough, as cows are fed different amounts of grain. Perhaps a better method is to allow the cows to have salt whenever they want it. It is a good plan to protect the salt supply from the weather.

I. A. A. WOOL POOL SOLD

Of the 779,000 pounds in the 1921 Illinois agricultural association wool pool, 698,900 pounds have now been sold at prices which will average 16.2 cents a pound net. The total sum received for the wool was $113,064.

Three thousand one hundred sixty-one farmers in 89 county Farm Bureaus contributed to the 1921 I. A. A. wool pool.

The price received for the pooled wool is not as large as the later market quotations. It is, however, more in almost every instance than growers could have received by individual sale at the time of clip.

The cost of marketing the wool in cents per pound was found to be as follows: Storage, .030045; freight, .015375; interest on freight, .000417; state association, .005; interest on settlements, .000010.

According to questionnaires sent in by twenty county Farm Bureaus, pooling growers received from two to three cents a pound more than they would have got by individual sale.

Another saving was affected to 2,700 farmers in blankets made from the pooled wool which were delivered at the cost price of manufacture.

It is announced that a reduction of half a cent a pound in the handling charges for the 1922 wool pool will be made. The lower freight rates, if maintained after June 30, will also bring about a considerable saving.

NEWS BRIEFS OF INTEREST TO COMMUNITY

The trial of Len Small, Governor of Illinois, charged with conspiracy to embezzle state interest funds totalling $819,091.31, was this week postponed until next Monday when the prosecution forces agreed to the proposal of the defense to delay the trial to permit the working out of a plan whereby much time in the actual trial would be saved.

The month of March was unusually cloudy with about 60 per cent more rain than usual, and was also mild, according to the Yerkes observatory report. The mean temperature for the month was 35.4 degrees which is 1 1/2 degrees above our fifteen year average. The highest reading during the month was 63 degrees on the thirteenth and the lowest was 12 degrees on the first and also on the second.

Union Grove received its $5,000 Pirsch fire truck last week. On test three streams of water were thrown 100 feet in the air. The cost of the equipment was borne jointly by the village and fire department.

Charles Bairstow, against whom a verdict of $4,600 was returned in the case of Sibley and Hawkins vs. Bairstow, claims that the verdict is unfair and wants a new trial. Again Judge Edwards intimated that there would be no new trial, but an attempt at a settlement will be made next Saturday.

Sibley and Hawkins, auto dealers of Antioch, sued Bairstow for money they claimed was due them through automobile transactions with Bairstow who was their agent in Waukegan.

Story of "The Man With Two Mothers"

Dennis O'Neill is busy shoeing horses at his home in Ballycoole, Ireland, when a letter comes from his aunt, Della Bryan, in New York, saying that one of the last wishes of her dead husband was that Dennis become a member of the family and heir to the family fortune, grown from the junk business. Nothing is said about his mother coming along, but Dennis decides that detail has been overlooked.

But on their arrival in New York, Mrs. Bryan, who doesn't care to be reminded of her humble origin, makes it plain that though Dennis is welcome the mother must return to Ireland. Mrs. O'Neill herself sees that she will not interfere with her son's future. Claire Mordaunt, niece of Mrs. Bryan, alone is genuine in her greeting and urges Dennis to remain loyal to his real

Nevertheless, there is reason to believe that, as the intellectual proficiency and speculative play of mind which are now confined to a comparatively small class become more generally diffused, as the pressure of effort towards material success is relaxed, as the number of men devoted to science, art and learning increases, so will the dominance of what may be called the business mind, decline, and with a richer variety of knowledge, tastes and pursuits, there will come also a larger crop of marked individualities, and of divergent intellectual types.—James Bryce.

VIOLENT STORMS IN MIDDLE WEST

Cyclones and Floods Sweep Illinois, Missouri and Indiana Cities.

FOURTEEN PERSONS KILLED

Five Die at Irvington, Ill., Nine at Other Places—Big Bridge Is Wrecked at Peoria—Hundreds Are Injured.

Chicago, April 10.—High winds, accompanied by rain, hail and snow, swept the Middle West and added to the toll of lives and property destruction already taken by flood waters. The toll of the cyclone that swept southern Illinois and Indiana was increased to 14 deaths and injuries to half a hundred.

Snow and sleet blanketed Colorado, Kansas and Nebraska, while to the east Missouri and Iowa were pelted with heavy hailstorms, which smashed windows and caused heavy damage to crops. Nine inches of snow fell at Denver.

A rail was sent to towns within a radius of 30 miles of Arkansas City for men and supplies to fight to prevent a break in the Mississippi river levees.

Throughout the area from Ohio on the east to Kansas and Nebraska on the west, heavy downpours swelled the flood waters of streams with the result that many more were driven from their homes and property losses mounted still higher.

The upper bridge over the Illinois river at Peoria went when 250 feet of the mile-long structure was swept away by the racing current. An additional 250 feet was being carried away piece by piece.

Volunteers worked frantically to keep the heavy wreckage from lodging against other structures and adding to the danger already threatening.

Five dead and more than thirty injured, one fatally and three seriously, was the toll taken by the cyclone which swept the neighborhood about Centerville. Four of the dead were at Irvington, half of which was wiped out by the high winds. The victims included E. F. Baldridge, Hazel Frather, Mrs. Charles Litterell and a Mr. Schlusser. The other was at Rosehill, to the northeast.

The injured were scattered through half a dozen towns hit by the storm. Six were injured at Marshall. Other places reporting injured and heavy property damage were Lake Central, Nashville, Walnut Hill and Shoalville.

Five persons were killed and more than 100 injured in Warren county, Indiana. The villages of Sloan and Hedrick were wrecked. Out of a population of 150 in Hedrick 100 were reported injured. Homes and stores were blown down. At Sloan, which has a population of 100, every home was demolished or damaged.

John Hasty, a farmer near Williamsport, Ind., was killed when his home was torn from its foundation and demolished by the cyclone which swept across Warren county, leaving a trail of wrecked and unroofed houses.

Storms spread wreckage through Putnam and Clay counties also. A swath was cut through the town of Springfield, near Bedford, by a cyclone.

Near Warsaw, Mo., two farmers were caught and drowned in the backwaters of the Osage river as they were taken away from their homes. Herbert Holmquist was drowned in the flooded Mississippi at Port Louna, Ia.

Two men were injured, one perhaps fatally, when a washout wrecked a mail and express train between Indianapolis and Peoria, near Foster, Ind. Charles Watts, Indianapolis, fireman on the train, is not expected to live. Traffic was blocked throughout the day.

BATTLESHIP IOWA AS TARGET

Once Pride of United States Navy, It Will Be Used in Radio and Gun Tests.

Philadelphia, April 10.—The battleship Iowa, once the pride of the United States navy, left the Philadelphia navy yard for Cape Henry, where it will be used as a target for the Atlantic fleet in a series of radio and gun experiments. Controlled solely by radio, the Iowa will attempt to run the gauntlet of the Atlantic fleet, now on its way from Guantanamo, Cuba. Besides the radio experiments the sinking of the ship will afford an opportunity to test the armor-piercing qualities of the largest projectiles and guns with which the modern battleships are equipped.

$525 IN PRIZES FOR THE BEST RHYMES

A new contest is just being started which will interest every woman and girl who reads this paper. Any woman or girl can enter this Contest—anyone can win! All it is necessary to do is to write a 4-line rhyme on Dr. Price's Phosphate Baking Powder, using only the words which appear either on the label of the Dr. Price can (front and back) or on the printed slip which is found in each Dr. Price can.

Isn't that easy? Everyone likes to make rhymes and here is a chance to spend a fascinating hour or two writing rhymes on this popular Baking Powder and perhaps winning a substantial prize for your efforts.

50 CASH PRIZES

For the rhyme selected as best a prize of $100 will be given; for the second, third and fourth best rhymes prizes of $75, $50 and $25, respectively will be given. And besides these prizes there will be 55 prizes of $5 each for the next 55 best rhymes. With such a long list of prizes as these, it would be a pity not to try your hand at it!

Here is a 4-line rhyme as an example:

Two teaspoons of this powder make
Biscuits, muffins, pie or cake,
The Price's Co., guarantee
No alum in the cans to be.

As Dr. Price's Phosphate Baking Powder sells for only 25 cents a 12 oz. can at grocery stores, some rhymes could play up the remarkable economy of this pure and wholesome baking powder which contains no alum.

All rhymes must be received by May 1, 1922. Only words appearing either on the label of the Dr. Price can (front and back) or on the printed slip contained inside the can may be used. These words may be used as often as desired, but no other words will be allowed. If you haven't a can of Dr. Price's, a copy of the label and the printed slip will be sent to you free upon request.

Any woman or girl may enter the Contest, but only one rhyme from each person will be considered. In case of ties, the full amount of the prize will be given to each tying contestant. Write plainly on only one side of a sheet of paper and be sure to give your name and address.

Send your rhyme before May 1st to Price Baking Powder Factory, 1007 Independence Blvd., Chicago, Ill.—Advertisement.

MATTER OF GREATER MOMENT

Heckler's Query Concerning the Bolsheviks Surely Should Have Had Right of Way.

President Philip T. Dodge of the International Paper company, said at a reception in New York:

"Sentimental Socialism, the doctrine of Bernard Shaw and H. G. Wells, used to be all the go, but we don't think quite so much of Sentimental Socialism today. We have found that the under dog, after all, isn't so very much better than the upper dog, and when the under dog gets on top—"

"Take the Bolsheviks, for instance. Wouldn't you rather be ruled over by President Harding or Lloyd George than by Lenin and Trotsky?"

"The Bolsheviks! A Bolshevik sympathizer was haranguing from a soap box the other afternoon."

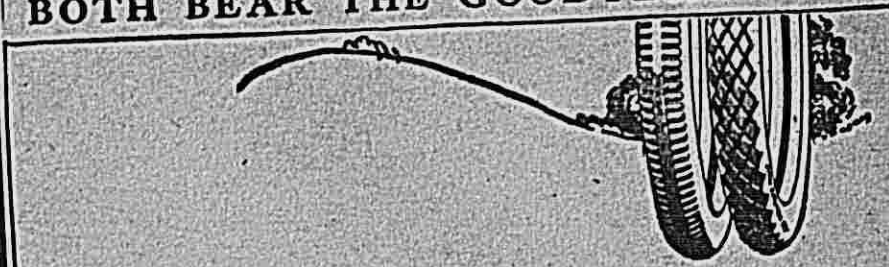

"The Bolsheviks are our brothers, he yelled. 'Our brothers, our Russian brothers, are starving. Who will give them their meals?'"

"Who?" interrupted a heckler, "will give them their deserts?"

Men's right are conserved fairly well; it is their privileges that are taken away from them.

Joy in religion is but another word for genuineness.

BOTH BEAR THE GOODYEAR NAME

One of the tires shown above is the famous 30 x 3 1/2 inch Goodyear All-Weather Tread Clincher.

By long wear, superior traction and freedom from skidding, and low final cost, this tire has won unquestioned leadership in its field.

Alongside it is illustrated its companion, the 30 x 3 1/2 inch Goodyear Cross Rib.

Both these tires are built in a factory devoted exclusively to manufacturing Goodyear Tires for small cars.

More than 5,000,000 of the Goodyear non-skid tires have been sold in the last five years.

Built of the same high grade Egyptian cotton fabric that goes into the All-Weather Tread Goodyear, with a long-wearing but differently designed tread, they have given remarkable service.

Their quality and serviceability have proved to thousands of car owners the folly of buying unknown and unguaranteed tires of lower price.

Ask your Goodyear Service Station Dealer to explain their advantages.

APPLES MAY HAVE RIPENED!

But No One Was Unkind Enough to Question Young Matron About That Peculiar Pie.

The Woman was week-ending at the suburban home of the Young Matron. Six or eight friends were having dinner with the couple.

For some months the proud bridegroom had been singing the praises of the Young Matron's experiences in the culinary art, particularly her pie-making ability.

"My husband insisted that I make an apple pie for you people, and I do hope it will be good," she explained. "The apples were a bit green and I am so afraid I did not put enough sugar in it."

When the much-discussed pastry appeared it looked promising indeed. The crust was flaky and browned to perfection, and the bridegroom's face bore an "I-told-you-so" expression. Sinking the knife deeply in it, the Young Matron lifted out a generous piece of (how the apples had ripened!) juicy, mince pie.—Chicago Journal.

It is just as dishonest to withhold deserved commendation as to withhold earned cash wages.

Economy is easy when you never have money enough.

Through Various Ways.
The Indian maiden treads softly in her moccasins; in Holland, it is wooden shoe; in Italy they may be barefoot; in Russia they wear boots; in France you see them in high-heeled slippers; in England they appear in common-sense heels with wide toes; in America it is first one style and then another, but, bless their dear hearts, they are charming howsoever you find them!—Judge.

When a man bows to the inevitable he is also in danger of sitting down and staying there.

The Boy Who Started to Town With a Hundred Dollars

The advice they gave him for getting on in the world was simple and familiar enough: "Keep what you have, and build on it. Be careful what you do and it will grow into more."

It's a safe rule—with money or health, but a good many overlook the rule with health, until they have lost what they had. Then it's hard to get a new supply.

Postum is a splendid help in saving health from the very common losses through the drug elements of tea and coffee—whose effects on the nervous system any doctor can tell you.

Thousands of people who think it wise to be as careful of their health as they are of their dollars are users of Postum. They find this famous cereal beverage a delightful drink with any meal, and it's free from any disturbing element.

You can begin with Postum today, with an order to your grocer. The road to health is a good road for anybody to follow. "Save what you have, and build on it," is sound policy for everybody.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in time) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes. Sold by all grocers.
